Institutional Mechanism towards Classical Way of Ayurveda Learning

2023-2018

8.1.2 Institutional mechanism towards classical way of Ayurveda learning

Response:

Knowledge of Ayurveda is described in its classical texts which are in Sanskrit language. That's why students should be familiar with the language and the methods of learning these classical texts.

Students take admission in BAMS with the background of modern sciences. That's why the method of leaning Sanskrit texts is bit hard for them. Also Sanskrit language is always hard task for them. And there are some ancient methods available to study these classical texts more precisely for better knowledge and classical Ayurvedic treatment.

Therefore institute has taken some initiative to fulfill this need. These are as follows –

1. Samhita reading (students) – Samhita Vachan is part of curriculum of Post Graduate students. So it is arranged for them regularly. Reading and understanding of samhitas for better clinical practices are expected outcome of this program.
2. Samhita readings (teachers) – teachers from all the faculties gather together for samhita vachan in samhita department regularly. They share their experiences while reading the texts. Teachers from clinical as well as non clinical faculties took part in this program.
3. Lectures of samhitas – there is a different faculty created to enhance the importance of classical texts in Ayurveda curriculum. Lectures regarding this are mandatory for all academic years of BAMS. The syllabus is designed by NCSIM and previously by CCIM. In these lectures texts like Ashtang Hridayam and Charak Samhita are taught. The time table and examination (theory and viva voce) are created according to instructions of NCSIM.
4. Sanskrit Sambhashan Varga - Every year department of samhita of SSAM & H arranged 10 days Sanskrit Sambhashan Varga. This is mandatory for first year students and optional for rest of the students and staff. Sanskrit Bharati organization makes provision of teacher to teach spoken Sanskrit. Teacher guides them in easy manner so that students can perceive language to have conversation in Sanskrit. Attendance and feedback is well maintained for this program.
5. Samhita Nirupan – a two days workshop regarding understanding of methods of reading of classical texts is organized by department of Samhita Siddhanta. Four programs were organized at a holy place in Gujarat where temple of Lord Dhanwantari is situated. Students from all over India took part in this program.

6. Webinar on Tantrayukti – A webinar was organized by department of Samhita Siddhant on Clinical Application of Tantrayuktis in 2020. Tantrayuktis are keys to understand desired meaning of classical texts.
7. Nighantu Pathan – Nighantu is compendium of herbal plants in Sanskrit language. There are many nighantus are available. It is mandatory to read by students of second year BAMS and post graduate students of Dravya Guna Vigyan department. The reading of Nighantus is organized by this department regularly.
8. Rasa Grantha Pathan – the knowledge of Rasashastra is described in classical texts, called as rasa granthas. They are also many in numbers written in different centuries. The reading is mandatory for second year students of BAMS and post graduate students of Rasashastra department. This program is well organized by the department regularly.
9. Recently a course is formed by Sanskrit Samvardhan pratishthan, New Delhi naming “Sanskritpathyatam”. It has a group of four books naming “Ayurvedasya bhasha”. Online course is also available. Through these books and online course one can come to know about Sanskrit language and reading – learning skills of Samhita. Two teachers from Samhita department Dr Abhijit Saraf and Dr Dnyanada Bhujbal are enrolled for this course.
10. World Sanskrit day, Ayurveda Day and Charak Jayanti – every year some special programs were organized on occasion of these two days by department of samhita to celebrate the Sanskrit Day, Ayurveda Day and Charak Jayanti.
11. Shloka recitation – in lectures of samhita department, recitation of shloka are mandatory task for students. Recitation of Tarksangrah for padarth vigyan and recitation Ashtang Hridayam for samhita adhyayan part one are compulsory.
